

How to carry out fit for purpose on site water testing

(The revision of BS 1427: - "Guide to on site test methods for the analysis of waters")

A half-day seminar
 Wednesday 25 March 2009
 SCI, London, UK

Organised by SCI's Environment Group and The Royal Society of Chemistry Water Science Forum

synopsis This seminar will provide information on the development and issues arising from the revision of BS 1427 "Guide on site test methods for the analysis of waters" with respect to monitoring of chemicals in drinking water, environmental waters and effluents. Issues around method validation and quality assurance will be discussed. The meeting will count towards continuous professional development requirements. A copy of the 82 page BS 1427 standard will be available at a 30% discount to all attendees; this must be ordered upon registration. Analysts, Consultants, Water Service Contractors, Water Scientists, Environmental Health Officers, all organisations involved in on-site measurements and test kit manufacturers would find this event useful.
