

Food Allergens Post Implementation of Food Information Regulations

24 February 2015

SCI, 14/15 Belgrave Square, London SW1X 8PS

The Food Information for Consumers Regulation (FIC) (1169/2011/EC) came into force across the EU on 13 December 2014. This had far-reaching implications across the food industry for the provision of allergen information. For pre-packaged foods it meant a change in the way the allergens are displayed on the pack, and a change to the way consumers' attention is drawn to them. For those supplying foods sold not pre-packed and all other areas of the industry, it has meant a huge change in the level of information that they must be able to provide on the allergens used in their products.

Two months on from the introduction of the changes to the regulation, are there still areas that the industry needs clarifying and what has the impact been? What lessons have been learnt in preparing for the change?

Programme:

- ▶ 17:30 - Registration and Refreshments
- ▶ 18:15 - Introduction
- ▶ 18:20 - Food Information Regulation - What have we learnt so far? - Barbara Hirst, Food Safety and Quality Consultant, RSSL
- ▶ 18:50 - Enforcement of the allergen requirement in catering establishments. What is happening on the ground? - Jenny Morris MBE, Chartered Fellow, CIEH
- ▶ 19:20 - Questions
- ▶ 19:30 - Refreshments and networking
- ▶ 20:00 - Close

Book today!

Tickets cost £8 via the website, or £15 at the door on the day

E: communications@soci.org

T: +44 (0)20 7598 1594

www.soci.org/events

Organised by SCI's Food Group