

Welcome Note

The 19th Annual Meeting of the "Gesellschaft für Virologie" (GfV, Society for Virology) will take place in Leipzig, 18th–21st March 2009.

As in previous years, the GfV annual meeting will again be one of the most important virology conferences in Europe and it will serve as a forum of exchange for novel research in experimental and clinical virology.

In particular, young scientists working in biomedical as well as veterinary virology are invited to present and to discuss with more senior scientists their actual research.

Among the comprehensive topics known from previous meetings, a special emphasis will be put on Immunology of Virus Infections, Neurovirology, and Viral Zoonoses.

The organisers are looking forward to welcome you in Leipzig, the city of Johann-Sebastian Bach, Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Robert and Clara Schumann, of trade and commerce, and of the peaceful revolution of 1989.

Incidentally, in 2009 the Leipzig University celebrates its 600th anniversary as the second oldest German university.
