The 21st Century is presenting a range of interconnected economic, social and ecological issues that professionals are expected to address such as corporate social responsibility, sustainability and environmental management.

Professionals are increasingly required to be knowledgeable about sustainable development and how it can be integrated into their profession.

This 1-day workshop will bring together professionals from different areas to engage in practical activities and dialogue on sustainability and sustainable development. Facilitators from Professional Practice for Sustainable Development will work with participants to practice methods for approaching and resolving the issues.
