Organic chemistry poster symposium

5 December 2022, Burlington House, London

The poster symposium is one of the RSC Organic Division's flagship events. The competitive symposium brings together outstanding organic chemistry PhD students from across the UK and Ireland to present their work to invited representatives from industry and academia. Prizes are awarded to the best posters including an Industry Prize awarded to the best research poster showcasing potential for industrial application. Dedicated to poster presentations, the symposium provides a fantastic opportunity for final year organic chemistry PhD students to showcase their research and network with peers, leading academics, and industrial chemists. The funds raised from sponsorship enables the students to participate in the event free of charge.
